Dormitory information	Some institutions offer on-campus housing. But if that's not available, you have to look for your own housing before you go on your exchange. Many students share off-campus housing with other international students during their exchange. Be prepared to spend plenty of time looking for suitable accommodation and people you're going to be happily living with. Read all rental contracts carefully before you sign it or pay a deposit. Some landlords will require references and proof of funds. Check whether utilities such as gas, electricity, water and waste disposal are included in the monthly rent, and make sure everything is working properly before you move in. Make sure your accommodation is confirmed before you leave.
